down as worthless.

If is a fact well known to all our Western citizens, that the missm that is constantly present in the air of this rich Western country, and the changes which occur so frequently, from heat to cold, give rise to various forms of disease, and it becomes an important inquiry, then, to us, what we can do to prevent these suddon attacks, to which we are so liable? An old saying is "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," and in nothing is it truer than in this,—for in however many forms we are attacked with illness, the primary cause is nearly the same. We catch cold, or over-eat, the porce of the body become closed and the reluse matter which is generally threwn out of the system by sensible or insensible perspirations, remains in it and clogs it up, and the consequence is that the inward functions of the body cannot perform their duty, any more than a watch can, the cogs of whose wheels are filled with dirt. Every part of our bodies demands its different element from the food, and the part, and send them in their proper direction; whes our system is fully open, this is well and beautifully done, and such parts of our bodies, but when cold, or other causes, stops these of the body; this offait (if we may so speak,) remains in the body; and revers, Ebeumatism, Jann.
